Every Journey Begins With A First Step

MyCISO has SaaS-ified the security program management journey

Many functions within an organisation rely on applications to manage different tasks in their day-to-day, so why should security management be any different?

MyCISO was created to simplify the complex aspects of security program management and remove much of the typically manual, heavy-lifting.

Empower Your Army

Traditionally, many organisations engage consultants to assess their security posture and make recommendations. This is not only expensive, but also does not empower the security leader with the operational model capable of managing the program on a continuous basis.

MyCISO assesses your current state through a series of simple questions designed for an IT all-rounder, captures your organisational environment and goals, performing a detailed assessment applying your risk context. The output is a weighted cyber security strategy report that is customisable to speak the language of your organisation and ready for C-level presentation.

Let's Break It Down

At MyCISO, we believe in elegant simplicity. We take complicated concepts and make them accessible to our customers. Simple, transparent and easy to understand.

The growing list of modules empowers Security and IT leaders to continuously monitor and improve the security maturity of the organisation and protect the business from the evolving list of threats.

The features within each of the modules are created based on the current threats, coupled with feedback from what organisations need or would like to see, to improve efficiencies and protect themselves and those they do business with.
